AVIATION MAINTENANCE TECHNOLOGY

Aviation maintenance technicians keep aircraft in safe flying condition by servicing, repairing and overhauling aircraft components following stringent regulations set forth by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). All aircraft are required to undergo thorough inspections and repairs on a regular basis. Technicians in this field work on aircraft components and systems including airframe, piston engines, turbine engines, hydraulic systems, propellers, rigging, warning systems, and environmental systems.

ASSOCIATE OF APPLIED SCIENCE AVIATION MAINTENANCE TECHNOLOGY

(Degree) · Program Length: 23 months

(Airframe and Powerplant Mechanic D.O.T. 621.281-014)

This program is designed to teach students entry-level technical skills in airframe and powerplant. Successful completion qualifies the graduates to take the written, oral and practical tests with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) for the Mechanic's Certificate with both Airframe and Powerplant Ratings. The skills and information taught in the program are applicable to other maintenance industries and professions as well as aviation; therefore, certification is not required to graduate. Obtaining an FAA A&P certificate is encouraged and provides additional options should the student choose to pursue certification. General education courses may provide students with foundational information of diverse subject matter, fostering critical thinking and communication skills. Third-party certifications are not guaranteed.

GRADUATE OUTLOOK

While no college can guarantee employment, employer, position, or salary, 65% of Spartan's 273 placed graduates between 2022-2024 were hired in an entry-level position at one of the following employers.
